Welcome to our Patio and Gardens!

By Patsy Dew

Come out on the patio! (the colorful patio with its orange, red and yellow accents) Come into the gardens! (the variety of flowerbeds and vegetable gardens) Enjoy the best weather Minnesota has to offer, right here in the Center’s own courtyard.

How do we manage to have so many wonderful gardens? The answer is, we have many wonderful volunteers. Lenora St. Martin and Kathy Hart are tending our vegetable beds. June Lenz has taken on the two flowerbeds closest to the fitness room, with the help of Kathy Hart. Edie Thomas is caring for the bed near the tool shed. Mary Ozmun is in charge of the patio pots.

Carolyn Sanford and Rose Turnacliﬀ have planted a Butterfly garden in the plot closest to the vegetable plots, and Greg Smith has taken on pruning of the shrubs. While I’m concentrating on the courtyard in this article, I have to mention the beautiful front gardens and Joe Endert’s beloved roses. Master Gardener Judy Code has served as a consultant.

I was intrigued by the idea of a “Butterfly Garden,” so I talked with Carolyn about it one day when she had stopped by to water it. Certain plants attract butterflies to consume their nectar. In planning a Butterfly Garden, one aims to have some plants in bloom throughout the summer, and especially mid to late summer when butterflies are most active. Carolyn and Rose have planted 15 varieties of perennials that are native prairie flowers in the this garden, including Purple coneflower, aster, two types of liatris, and Butterfly weed. They also planted a few non-native annuals that attract butterflies to add color while the other plants take root.

Why native prairie plants? Carolyn explained that these plants send out deep roots, meaning they will need less frequent watering. This also means some of them may not bloom this summer, as they put their energy into root production. Another virtue of these native plants is that they are healthier for the butterflies that drink their nectar. Other commercial versions of these plants have often been bred for vibrant color, or for longer bloom, and have sometimes been infused with pesticides which are harmful. This cultivation of the plants for their appearance has diminished their food value to the butterflies, bees and hummingbirds.

I am reminded of my disappointment as an adult when Delicious apples I bought in the grocery store did not taste as flavorful as those of my Michigan child-

Asian Brush Paintings - Heaven and Earth - Invisible and Visible

July 2 - August 2
Opening Reception:
Tues, July 16, 5-7pm

Many members of the Ming Chiao Asian Brush Painters will be showing their work in this exhibit.

The name Ming Chiao means Minnesota Bridge and signifies a link between the East and the West. The name reflects a connection to the numerous lakes and mighty rivers in Minnesota. Dee Teller, one member of this group, is internationally known for her Asian Brush Painting and calligraphy. She writes, "The balance of negative (empty) and positive (ink or watercolor) space in an Asian Painting is important. This is the yin/yang. It also helps explain the show's title ASIAN BRUSH PAINTING/ HEAVEN AND EARTH/ INVISIBLE AND VISIBLE. The artist and calligrapher must:

Learn to use ink freely with a controlled brush stroke; capture the essence of spirit of subject; and evoke poetry of nature by creating beautiful lines and forms by means of brush strokes."

Dee Teller will be giving an Asian Brush demo at 3:45pm on July 16. If you would like to attend, contact Patsy Dew by July 3.

hood. Then I learned that bigger, more colorful apples sold better, so the Washington growers had bred them that way. And I have read recently that our bee population is in danger partly because the flowers' nectar now contains pesticides. So I think it's wonderful that the Center will have a garden that is truly welcoming to butterflies, bees, and, of course YOU!

Thank you to the following people who gave contributions to the Center in May:

OVERNIGHT TRIP
DAKOTA CONFLICT - NEW ULM

Tues/Wed, July 23-24
Time: 8am

Minnesota has been highlighting the 150th anniversary of the six-week U.S. – Dakota War of 1862. This was a disastrous time in Minnesota history. An overnight trip has been arranged for this summer. The excursion will include guided tours of New Ulm, Fort Ridgely Indian Reservation, the lower Sioux reservation and Ted Rock Ridge (including the Jeffers Petroglyphs) with stops for coffee/lemonade and strudel, rib lunch in New Ulm, Harkin’s general store (1870), and a sod house at Sandborn. The group will be staying at the Jackpot Junction Hotel. The hotel, admission to the historic places and one lunch (at the Kaiserhof Restaurant) is included in the trip cost. Dinner, breakfast and one lunch are on own. Limited to 20 persons.

Cost: $155 (Double Room); $205 (Single Room)

REVEALED

Science Museum of Minnesota, St Paul
Tuesday, September 17
Time: 9:15am - 4:15pm

Join us in discovering what archaeologists know about the ancient Maya – one of the most complex and advanced civilizations of the ancient world. It is known for its monumental architecture and distinctive art styles, knowledge of astronomy and time-reckoning, complex political organization headed by royal dynasties and its sophisticated writing systems. Upon our arrival we’ll be treated to coffee and a snack. Then we’ll proceed to the Omnitheater to see the film, “Mystery of the Maya.” Lunch at the museum is on own. After lunch we’ll see the exhibit and have time to visit the gift shop before returning to Northfield.

The 2013 Annual Fund Drive Roadmap

by Lynne Pederson

The Drive has begun. By now you should have received your letter asking for your donation. I hope that you take the time to read it as it gives the reasons why the Annual Fund Drive is needed. And I hope that you support the Center as one of the organizations that you donate to. As members of this organization we are in this together. Everyone needs to get “on the bus” to make this year’s drive a success. It can’t happen without all of our support. We know that the Center is worth it.

Let’s drive the bus!

This month, I would like to honor, thank, and introduce the sustaining donors. This group of donors have made the commitment to give to the Center on a monthly basis. These 27 people have made the decision to support the Center for the long haul. They recognize that it is a convenient way to give, it feels good knowing that they are contributing to the Center each month, and it helps the financial bottom line.

From the 27 donors, each month there is $782 pledged and donated. This is a good thing—dependable income for the Center. Monthly donations can be made in any amount of $10 or more. You can join this impressive group by signing up on your donor envelope.
