Here Comes the Sun! by Lynne Pederson

Announcing something new in our dining center: the Sunshine Café will open on April 6! A few months ago the room got an uplift, new carpet, new window treatments, and a new look. Now there will be a new food service as well. When you come to the Café, there will be an ala carte menu for you to choose from. You will be able to make a salad from the new salad bar, or order the sandwich of the day or the soup. All items are made in the kitchen from scratch. Ruth Bolstad has been hired to cook the ala carte menu items. Ruth is a caterer in town and is well known for the meals she serves at Bethel church on Wednesday nights and the Bistro at Sechler Park. And of course, the main meal served now will still be available. Roxy will be the cook for those menu items.

The Café will have new hours, open from 11:00 to 1:00. Reservations will no longer be required.

Tables will not be preset and diners will no longer be called to go up and to get their meal. There will be a Café atmosphere - you may come in anytime during these hours, order lunch, and sit wherever you like. You may also order a "to go" lunch if that is more convenient. You will pay a cashier for your menu items. Later this month, watch for the menus to be posted and for samples of the new soups and sandwiches for you to try.

I am excited knowing that the Sunshine Café is opening. It is a great addition to the Center. Members can stop in for lunch before playing cards, after a class, or just as a destination to have lunch. Staff from the building can pop in and get something quick for lunch.

If you have questions or want to know more, stop in and see me or Gail Noren, Dining Coordinator, in room 105.

Radio Dramedy, March 21 & 22

Mark your calendars, and plan to attend, this year's live presentation of a radio show on March 21 at 7:30pm and March 22 at 3pm. We will be performing, complete with sound effects, one of the popular "Whistler" mysteries, which were on the air from May of 1942 until September of 1955. One of the intrigues of The Whistler show was always the surprise ending. Each show began with the Whistler setting the mysterious, suspenseful tone with these words, "I am the Whistler, and I know many things, for I walk by night. I know many strange tales, hidden in the hearts of men and women who have stepped into the shadows. Yes...I know the nameless terrors of which they dare not speak."

In addition to the Whistler episode, "The Necklace was Incidental," there will be hilarious commercials and other radio comedy bits from the 40's. Cast includes: Dan Van Tassel, Dick Waters, Marie Gery, Jim McDonnell, Jane Greenwood, Jim Haas, Dale Sheldon, Rhoda Van Tassel, and Peggy Sheldon. Tickets: $10.

A WALK TO REMEMBER

By: Gene Finger

John Johnson was hit and killed by a car while attending a Sertoma convention in Lancaster, PA. John and I were business partners and also members of Sertoma, an organization dedicated to deaf children. Within the year following his death, I thought about creating a memorial for John. Sertoma was going to have their yearly convention in Fargo, North Dakota, in 1980, and it was only three hundred miles away. Maybe I could walk to that convention and take pledges for so much a mile, but I had to consider that I would be fifty years old that year. My doctor said yes, I could walk that distance, and my banker said that it was the most foolish thing he had ever heard of. Pledges started coming in and was I ever surprised. There were a few at ten cents a mile, several at fifty cents per mile, a lot of pledges of a dollar per mile, and one pledge of five dollars per mile. This was starting to be a serious minded goal. Finally it came, a bright, sunny April day when a small group of Northfield supporters gathered to see me off. A few decided to walk with me but soon they started to drop off. I left Northfield and walked on Cedar Avenue to Apple Valley where I met a small group of Sertoma members who took me to a restaurant for a late lunch. When the waiter came for my order, I asked for three glasses of ice water and drank them in short order. When my food order came, I took one bite and passed out. What a way to start the walk, but I soon recovered and was able to finish my meal. Lesson learned. From there on out, I would ask for water with no ice, and orange juice.

John Herzog, a Sertoman from the North Minneapolis club donated the use of a large recreational vehicle to follow me during the trip and to provide me a place to sleep at night. After a great breakfast, I started across Minneapolis and walked to Anoka, and as I got into town, I had a surprise at the first curb I encountered. I could not raise my leg up that high. My legs were so locked into a stride that six inches were impossible so I had to reach down, grab a pant leg and lift the leg up to clear the curb.

Walking twenty-five miles a day gave me a lot of time to think. Whatever the problem was today, the sun would still come up in the morning. In the mornings, I usually walked at 4 miles an hour, and afternoons at a slower pace. One of the things that absolutely amazed me was that I hit the wall every day. Another thing was that I had to set goals. The first goal would be that hill up ahead. Then the goal would shorten to the next telephone pole and finally my goal would be the next crack in the road. By making small goals, I was able to complete the larger goal for the day.

As I got closer to Alexandria, Minnesota, some of the Sertoman's met me and walked the final three miles into town. They asked me what I wanted to do and I replied, "Absolutely nothing." I needed to get some time away from the walk. One of the Sertoman's offered the use of his house, and I happily took him up on his offer. After a long, hot shower, I read the paper and took a nap. It was just what I needed.

When I started the walk, I carried a good supply of Gator-Aid, but there was nothing better than a couple of glasses of orange juice. In nineteen eighty we never thought to carry a water jug on the belt, so consequently there were times when I got mighty thirsty before I got to my next destination. I ate in restaurants the entire trip. In order to keep myself going, I tried to consume eight to ten thousand calories a day, so by the time I got to Fargo, I had only lost a pound for the entire trip.

I probably got myself into a dangerous situation once. My destination was Fergus Falls and the temperature that afternoon went over a hundred degrees. I didn't

This year we have revised our trips a bit from the past years with the goal of providing the opportunity for more members to participate in at least one or hopefully both trips. Both trips will provide a box meal and discussion with actors after the play, the same as our lower priced trip last year. They will also each include a beautiful ride to Winona, pre-play introduction by Phillip Spensley, and appropriate treats on the return trip. The primary reason for these trips is to see great plays presented by outstanding professional actors, who enjoy sharing both on and off stage and are also really nice people. The new option provides the opportunity for more to enjoy great Theatre.

Co-sponsored by the Northfield Senior Center and the Cannon Valley Elder Collegium, the Great River Shakespeare Festival (grsf.org) will begin its 12th Season under the leadership of Artistic Director, Doug Scholz-Carlson, known to many in Northfield where he began his career. We hope to bring Doug to the Center for a season review in June – but he is now doing his fight choreography for the Opera “Silent Night” in Kansas City—and we will schedule that visit soon.

The GRSF company is composed of Shakespearean equity actors drawn from across the country. The core of the company returns each season and they provide the best interpretation of Shakespeare in Minnesota. You may visit the Great Rivers web site, grsf.org, to find additional information on the company and on the interpretation of the plays that will be presented by this outstanding professional company.

realize that there was a problem until I met a newspaper reporter about three miles south of Fergus Falls and when he started to ask some questions, I realized that I couldn't talk. I pointed up ahead to a truck stop and let him know that I would meet him there. He drove to the truck stop while I continued to walk. When I got to the restaurant, I ordered two glasses of orange juice and four glasses of water, all with no ice, and was finally able to utter a few words. After speaking with the reporter, we split up and I continued the final two miles into Fergus Falls. When I arrived, some Sertomans met me and told me that I was just in time to 'go on live'. They took me to a radio station and after spending some time at the water fountain, I gave what I thought was a not too great interview. However, later in my journey, I had a couple of farmers stop their tractors in the field, and kindly came over to the road to tell me that they had heard me on the radio the day before. Leaving Fergus Falls the next morning, I found that the weather had really changed. The temperature had dropped forty degrees from the day before and I had to walk into a stiff wind. Several times that day, I had to lie down in the highway ditch to recover so I could continue the walk. That day was the hardest one of the entire trip. On the eleventh day of the trip, I arrived in Dilworth, Minnesota, five miles from my destination. The next morning, several Sertomans met me on the road and walked with me into Fargo. When it became a fact that I had reached my goal, my wife and three daughters drove to Fargo to help celebrate my success. The goal of the walk was to raise funds for the Sertoma Foundation and raise them we did. A check for a little over $21,000.00, the largest donation that Sertoma had yet received, was given to the foundation in John's name. I thought of doing another walk a few years later but

The Fitness Forward Capital Fund campaign has started. We need to raise $50,000 by May 31st to pay for new fitness equipment in the Fitness Room. The time has come - the equipment is wearing out, parts are needed that are no longer available, and it is time to replace, renew, and refresh. We have a generous donation of $15,000 to kick-off the campaign. You can help us meet our goal. Watch for a letter in your mail that will tell you more and how you can donate. And check out the slide show on the Senior Center website on the home page. It gives lots of information, pictures of the equipment, and costs.

This is one more project that is making the Center better. We can do this together.
